Swedish Health Services

REINVESTING IN THE COMMUNITY
In the last nine years, Swedish Health Services spent more than $1.5 billion in community benefit. We are making investments that go beyond the need for free and discounted care by promoting equity, improving access to care and building relationships to help people stay healthy.

In 2022, we spent more than $276 million on community benefit programs, including $36 million in free and discounted care.

ACCESS TO CARE
In 2022, Swedish provided access to more than 99,203 Medicaid patients.

PROVIDING FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE
Our charity care program provides a 100 percent financial discount to individuals and families between 0-300 percent of the federal poverty level.

$189 million
Unpaid cost of Medicaid and other means-tested government programs: This is the difference between the actual cost of care and what is paid by the state and federal government. It does not include Medicare.

$36 million
Free and discounted medical care for patients in need: This is financial assistance for those who are uninsured, underinsured or otherwise unable to pay for their health care.

$35 million
Health professions, educations and research: These are subsidies for medical residency programs, nursing and other education, and medical research.

$9 million
Subsidized health services: This includes clinical and social services provided despite a financial loss because they meet identified needs not met elsewhere in the community.

$7 million
Community health improvement and strategic partnerships: This reflects free services, such as patient education, health screenings, immunizations and support groups as well as donations to community partners.

These leading health concerns were identified to guide us in gathering accurate information to determine current health trends and identify issues for action.

- Behavioral Health (including mental health and substance use) — Many people in our community shared needing more BBIPMC (Black, Brown, Indigenous, and People of Color) providers and better support for parents with children with mental health challenges. Young people as well as those identifying as LGBTQ+, survivors of domestic violence and patients who speak languages other than English face significant challenges navigating and accessing support services.

- Homelessness and housing instability — The high cost of housing is a big challenge for families, especially those who are pushed out of the neighborhoods due to rising housing costs and gentrification. The COVID-19 pandemic magnified this issue, and many families are concerned about how they will pay the rent they owe, affecting mental health and economic stability.

- Substance abuse and drug addiction — The effects of substance abuse contribute to costly social, physical, mental and public health problems, and has a devastating impact on individuals, families and communities.

- Racism and discrimination — Racism and discrimination play a role in gentrification, unsustainable rent prices, and hiring practices affecting employment opportunities for BBIPMC communities. The COVID-19 pandemic highlighted racism as a public health issue and opportunity gaps in education for BBIPMC students.

- Access to health care — Transportation was the main barrier to care in our communities including cost of care, technology, language barriers and health literacy. The COVID-19 roll out highlighted the importance of building trust with patients and bringing services to community members in non-clinical locations.

Swedish supports the vital work of local agencies and organizations whose efforts further impact the work that we do to find innovative, equitable and measurable ways to reduce health care costs and improve the health and quality of life in our communities. Below are some of the more than 80 partners that we partner with to address the priorities in our CHNA.
How we care and partner

KIN ON
Kin On is a senior service provider for the local Asian senior community, providing care through its culturally sensitive skilled nursing facility, short-term rehab center, assisted living, home care, and more. Kin On’s newest program is Health Home, supporting low-income seniors with chronic conditions in the community. With Providence Swedish’s support, Kin On’s Health Home Program had over 300 touchpoints with low-income senior clients in 2022, including home visits, doctor’s appointments, and other care needs. The program assisted seniors receiving a wheelchair and obtaining needed medical supplies monthly such as gauze rolls, gloves, and disinfectant wipes. The program also assisted with facilitating referral processes for dentures with the seniors care team, scheduling medical appointments with necessary transportation, and decreasing the gap between family and client concerns. Participants of the program are followed-up with twice a month to ensure that all needs are met and to assist with any concerns that the family and/or a senior may have. EL CENTRO DE LA RAZA
El Centro de la Raza’s Benefits Navigators regularly assist individuals with enrolling in the state’s Apple Health Insurance and other health insurance plans. In 2022, they helped over 150 households navigate their health care related needs. Many of its Spanish-speaking program participants are uninsured and struggle to understand online government systems. Their Benefits Navigators assist them with finding the health coverage that they qualify for and completing the enrollment process. Recently, they were visited by a senior seeking help to manage his diabetes. They quickly assisted him with applying for Medicare health insurance and then finding a doctor to start treating him.

WEST SEATTLE FOOD BANK
Vital support from the Swedish Community Health Investment Fund played a key role in the food bank’s ability to respond to the shelter needs of the community. In 2022, 100% of our contribution was distributed to a household in need of assistance. Together, we prevented homelessness and displacement and helped improve the health and wellness of its clients.

To illustrate this support is a story about Jorge, a single father of three daughters, who moved to Seattle to build a better life for his family. Unfortunately, the high cost of living led to homelessness while he worked to save enough money for an apartment. Eventually, he was able to move into an apartment in West Seattle, but the deposit and move-in costs left him without enough money to pay rent. That’s when he visited West Seattle Food Bank. He was provided with groceries, a month’s rent, clothes for his daughters, and resources for after-school care. “For the rest of my life I will remember this,” Jorge commented to the staff. He shared that the assistance took a huge weight off his shoulders. For the first time, he can pay rent on time and build a financial safety net. He said, “the climb out was difficult, but possible with the help of West Seattle Food Bank.”

SOMALI HEALTH BOARD (SHB)
Support for SHB’s linguistically and culturally appropriate Mental Health and Addiction Care Services provides access and services around stigma reduction, and community wide mental health education for an estimated 8,000 Somali residents in King County. Somali people face challenges in cultural and language barriers that impact their access to resources and advancements daily. Most refugees and immigrants suffer from post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), and many Somalis relay having depression. The trauma experienced that lead Somalis to the U.S. continues to have substantial impacts on mental health. To combat this, it is crucial to understand the Somali communities’ needs and provide services that integrate cultural humility and responsiveness that is evidence-informed holistic care individual to each person’s needs. Somali Health Board is best known for its advocacy to provide those uniquely catered services. https://www.somalihealthboard.org/about-the-program/
PROVIDENCE - SWEDISH. TOGETHER, FOR YOU.
Caring for the Puget Sound region, together, for a decade. Now, we are uniting under one brand in the Puget Sound region. This means the same great care will be available with more resources and locations to care for you and your family.

Providence Swedish is more than a hospital; it’s a powerful network of skilled physicians, award-winning care centers, advanced clinical research, and breakthrough treatments. It’s world-class care, from people who care for you. And now that we are combining our networks, we’ll be able to offer more exceptional care to you where and when you need it.
