

KIMBERLY MORRISSETTE

Kimberly Morrisette is a practicing emergency physician and current Swedish system chief of staff. She grew up in Massachusetts and trained in the northeast attending undergrad at Assumption College, medical school at the University of New England, and emergency medicine residency at UMass where she was chief resident. In 2008, she moved to Seattle and joined Tacoma Emergency Care Physicians where she was a partner, served on the group's board of directors and as a medical director.

In 2016, she joined Eastside Emergency Physicians (EEP) which staffs Swedish Issaquah, Redmond and Mill Creek emergency departments. Dr. Morrisette was the director of quality for EEP, and a board member for several years on the Washington State Department of Health Board of Osteopathic Medicine.

She has served on several committees and held leadership roles, most notably as the chair of the Swedish call committee and currently now as system chief of staff. She resides in Bellevue with her two children, pediatric emergency physician spouse Patrick Solari, and their dog Copper, an Australian Labradoodle. In her free time, she can be found poolside as a USA swimming official, or Uber-driving her children to various activities. Dr. Morrisette serves as an ex-officio member of the Board in her role as Swedish system chief of staff.