

Cancer Survivorship Program Offers Telehealth

Have a conversation with the nurse practitioner via the internet, using your smartphone, tablet or computer with a camera.

TeleSurvivorship is a Swedish service making it possible for patients who have completed their cancer treatment to have a comprehensive, virtual face-to-face visit with an experienced nurse practitioner.

Our nurse practitioners have significant expertise that can help you understand the treatment that you had and discuss resources that you can use going forward.

A convenient way to get information and support remotely, delivered to your home or office.

- Easy to use, secure platform that allows you to see and interact with the nurse practitioner, similar to FaceTime®
- Comprehensive review of specific treatment information and follow-up care
- Discussion of specialty and support resources
- No additional cost for this type of consultation
- Reduces need for travel to appointments

To schedule your appointment or for more information, ask your doctor's scheduler or call the Cancer Survivorship Clinic: 206-320-8266.

We do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, age, or disability in our health programs and activities.
